ROAR STREET JOURNAL

Barking Up The Wrong Tree

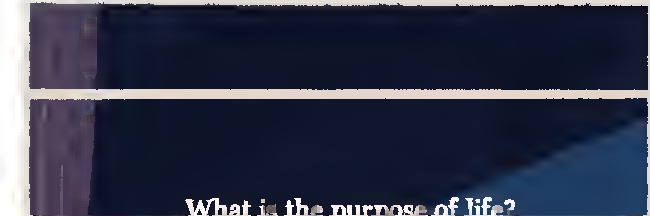
There is a big tree in the neighborhood.

Everyday, the dogs go to bark at the biggest tree.

WOOFwoofwoo
woo
FwoofWOOFwo

The kids playing in the tree house would throw them snacks to eat and sticks to play with.

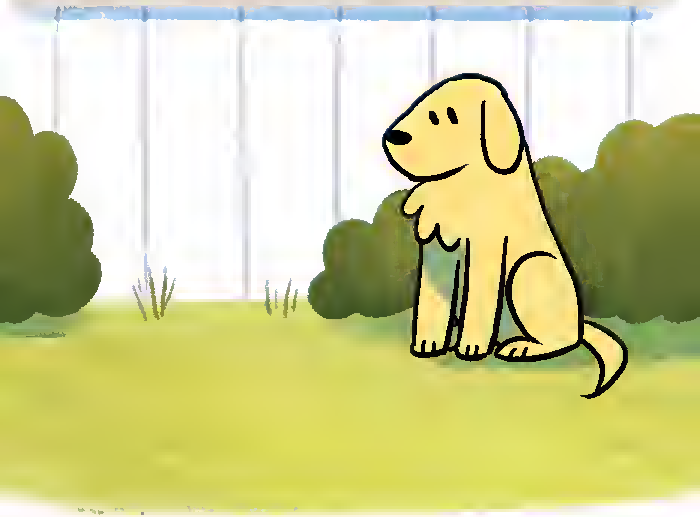
But I don't play with them,
because I have more important things to do.



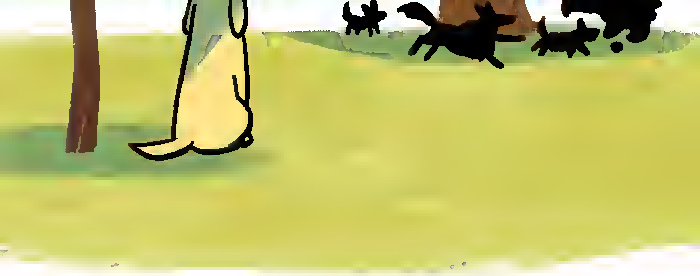
What is the purpose of life?

What is the purpose of life?

How to live a meaningful and happy life?



Is life just about barking around, eating snacks and playing fetch?



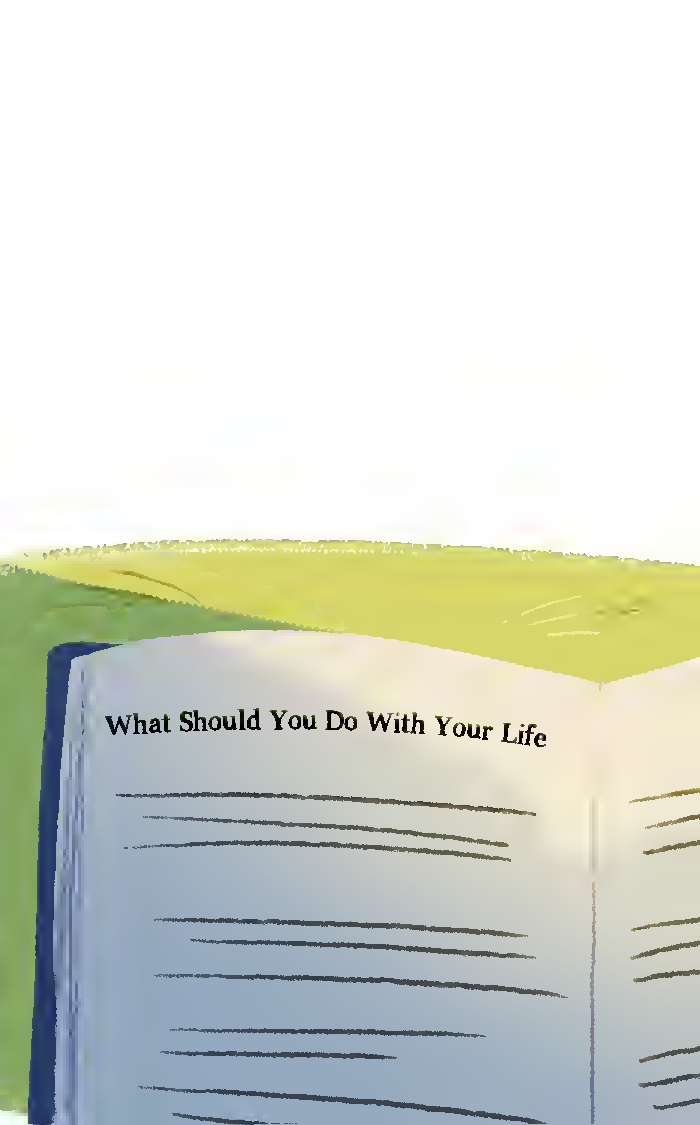
I'm not satisfied with this answer...

woof

WOOF

Sorry

Turns out there's a weird guy
reading books in the tree.



What Should You Do With Your Life

Then, when the dogs bark at the biggest tree everyday

I would bark at this tree

Hey Doglas, you're barking up the wrong tree!

I pay no attention to them.

The books and notes are useful...

...for my master who seem to be depressed lately.

woof
woof

7 tips on relationships
How to live a meaningful life

Things happe
people do everya

Until one day, I don't need to bring books to my master anymore.

Now that we have answers for our life questions,
I can enjoy a happy life with my master.

We work

We play

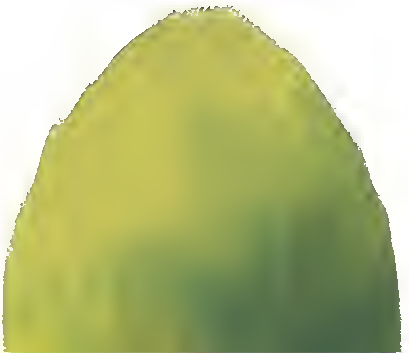
We hug others

We do some good deeds

We learn something new

And every now and then,

we go back to bark at the wrong tree.



ROAR STREET JOURNAL

This episode is a shout out to Eric Barker, whose blog "Barking Up The Wrong Tree" helped me out of depression several years ago.

Congratulations on the book release!

Instagram Facebook Twitter Tumblr @Bonniepangart

www.bonniepangart.com